- Core thesis: Solana is the strongest major this weekend - up 1.2% in 24 hours while Bitcoin adds 0.6% and Ethereum sits flat - and it is holding above its pivot level. But the bigger picture is a deep bear market: down 56% over the year and 26% on the month.
- Main catalyst: the US-Iran signing window - possibly this weekend in Europe - falls inside this 24-hour window, and crypto is the only market open to trade it. Solana's own fund inflows have stayed positive while Bitcoin and Ethereum funds bleed.
- Main risk: high-beta cuts both ways - a stalled deal unwinds this bounce fastest in Solana, sentiment prints back-to-back Extreme Fear, and a large token unlock from June 7 is still being absorbed by the market.

Scenarios (broad view)

Scenario	Trigger	Broad expected move	What to watch
Bullish	Deal signed inside the window	Squeeze toward 68.3 - 68.8, stretch toward 70	Whether the first hour's gains hold
Base	No signature either way	Drift 66.3 - 68.3 around the 67.1 pivot	Behaviour at the pivot magnet (touched 73% of days)
Bearish	Talks stall / hostile headline	Slide toward 65.4, stretch toward 64.2	Stability of the 65.4 area on first test
